Bourton on the Water - 'Venice of the Cotswolds'

Often referred to as the 'Venice of the Cotswolds' due to the River Windrush running right through the centre, Bourton on the Water is one of the most visited villages in the Cotswolds.

Clear sparkling water and attractive low bridges crossing the river create a charming scene, especially at the quieter times of day and quieter months of the year.

Pubs, shops, restaurants and tea-rooms, and an unusually high number of visitor attractions for such a small place, provide plenty of options to keep all ages entertained. Bourton has a long history of attracting visitors with the Model Village (a replica of the village itself) opening in 1937 and Birdland twenty years later. Other attractions include one of Britain's best small motor museums.

Historically, St Lawrence's church is notable for its domed tower, unique in the Cotswolds. Salmonsbury Meadows has been saved as a wildlife reserve, and the Iron Age site of Salmonsbury Camp can be traced in outline.

Bourton offers lovely walking country and is very close to the beautiful villages of Lower and Upper Slaughter, as well as Stow on the Wold, Northleach and Burford a little further afield.

Walking in or around Bourton on the Water:

Village Walk approx 1.5 hours. A circular walk beginning from the Visitor Information Centre on Victoria Street and taking you away from the High Street to the quieter areas around the village centre, explaining the heritage of some of the buildings. Available to buy from the Visitor Information Centre.

Bourton on the Water, Upper Slaughter and Lower Slaughter approx 4 miles. This circular walk follows the Windrush Way and Gloucestershire Way to the pretty village of Upper Slaughter. It then heads along the Wardens Way to Lower Slaughter and back to Bourton along the river. Featured in the Five Country Walks booklet on sale at the Visitor Information Centre.

Miles without Stiles: Bourton on the Water & Wyck Rissington approx 4 miles. This is an easy walk through meadows to the unspoilt village of Wyck Rissington incorporating three small rivers (two of which are the shortest in the Cotswolds), a nature reserve and a maze in a church. Part of the walk is along the Oxfordshire Way and Gustav Holst Way. Holst worked as a choirmaster and organist in Wyck Rissington Church as a teenager. Downloadable.

Meadows & Mills approx 4 miles. This is an easy walk downhill from Stow on the Wold to Bourton on the Water across meadows, through Lower Slaughter, to the old mill which houses a tea shop, small store and a museum. Downloadable.

Bourton on the Water to Little Rissington via Rissington Mill approx 4 miles. A pretty circular walk leaving the village through fields and along the river to Rissington Mill. Admire the 12th century church of Little Rissington and its RAF memorial window and graves. Featured in the Five Country Walks booklet to buy from the Visitor Information Centre.

Greystones Farm Nature Reserve
The reserve is a 5-minute walk from Station Car Park and there are two walking routes including an audio trail marked by arrows: Meadow Walks and Archaeology Walk. As well as being an important nature area, Greystones Farm is a protected Scheduled Ancient Monument with human habitation dating back almost 6000 years. Available from the Visitor Information Centre.

Circular Walk from Bourton through Naunton and the Slaughters approx 9 miles. Beginning from the Visitor Information Centre on Victoria Street, this walk heads out into the fields and along the Windrush Way and Donnington Way. You can stop in Naunton for refreshment before heading along the Wardens Way to the pretty village of Upper Slaughter. The route then heads to Lower Slaughter and back to Bourton. Available to buy from the Visitor Information Centre.
